Mid Somerset 3rd XI 0
Taunton CS 3rd XI 2

On the Astroturf at Edgarley, Mid Somerset 3rd XI conceded a goal in the first half and a second 10 minutes from time which enabled a strong Civil Service team to complete the double over Mids this season.

There was an encouraging display in goal from 13-year-old debutant Martin MacBlair. Mids' best chance fell to Dave Yelland late in the game.

Mid Somerset 3rd XI 2
Phillipians 3rd XI 0

On the Astroturf at Edgarley, Mid Somerset played their most fluid hockey of the season, and threatened the Bath side's defence with every attack.

Mid's scored a goal in each half, the first from right winger Colin Crees and the second from Australian Todd Nicholls, who scored with a well-struck shot from a short corner.

Both Daryl Livingstone and Jim Bryson had chances which they missed, and the final score did not do justice to the possession and chances created by the Mids' team.

Phillipians 3rd XI 1
Mid Somerset 3rd XI 2

On a shale pitch at Bath, Mid Somerset had the benefit of a rolling substitute thanks to three players making their debuts for the club.

Two of them, Gary Atyeo and Andy Nurish, scored a goal in each half, which gave the 3rd XI their first win of 1994.

In an open game there were numerous chances for both teams, but Mids' win was well deserved.

Cirencester 3rd XI 5
Mid Somerset 3rd XI 1

An early start, a long journey, a poor shale pitch and only seven players were the sad statistics for this game, but Mids were grateful to Cirencester's fourth team, who didn't have a match and provided the players to give them a full side.

Cirencester's ball control was much better than Mids', and they raced into a three-goal first half lead. Mids pulled a goal back through Pete Marley - his first for the club - but it was little consolation.

BAC 3rd XI 3
Mid Somerset 3rd XI 1

With last week's game being cancelled, the 3rd XI travelled to the Astroturf pitch at the West of England University, Bristol, to play BAC.

A week's rest seemed to work wonders, as Mids took the lead through Simon Foote, and played some good hockey.

However, the home side equalised through a short corner, and with the help of their first-team centre-forward in the second half, who scored twice, went on to win 3-1.
